Held during the ensuing week.

MONDAY, June 26.—Institution of Architects, 8 P.M.

TUESDAY, 27.—Institution of Civil Engineers, 8 P.M.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

"Stain for Compo."—A correspondent says,—"I have a large surface of cement to the exterior of a mansion that I wish to stain: an objection is made to the ordinary colouring, and to paint, and it is considered that both might be superseded by a stain that would contain sufficient colouring matter to give the appearance of stone of a warm buff tint. If you will kindly insert this in your valuable periodical, some of your numerous correspondents may possibly afford me some information."

"W. W."—We are unable to reply without seeing some specimens.

"R. W."—Our correspondent "W. C." denies the truth of Mr. Wyld's statement. A re-assertion is no proof.

"W. O."—We are compelled to adhere to our constantly repeated statement, that we have not time to find addresses or advise as to books.

MR. GRISSELL has the honour to inform Architects and gentlemen engaged in Building, that in consequence of having nearly completed the above works, he is at liberty to supply the Anstone Stone for building purposes in general.

The price at which it can be delivered in London does not exceed the price of Portland stone. As to quality and colour, the experience of the past seven years will fully attest its superiority.

It is also preferable for staircases and rubbed landings, for which purposes it can be supplied in any size; and as regards cost (with the exception of common paving), it is not more expensive than York.

In addition to the New Houses of Parliament, Mr. Grissell takes leave to refer to the Museum of Economic Geology, just erected in Piccadilly; to the Artesian Aquarium now in Fleet-street; and to the New Hall in Lincoln's-inn-fields.

Mr. Grissell desires also to state, that the stone which he now the honour for the first time to offer to the public, and has been used exclusively in the above works, is from the estate of his Grace the Duke of Leeds, and that Mr. Grissell also the right of quarrying this stone.

These Shutters are fixed horizontally either above or below the window or doors, or vertically, for which position the greatly improved construction of the convex laths renders them peculiarly suitable; and can be applied to a doorway, may be seen any day at [illegible] Fleet-street, at the Britannia Life Assurance Office, corner of [illegible] Bank.
